Dr. John M. Walker, in Thanksgiving Sermon, Points To Material Reasons For Being Thankful

PROFOUNDEST REASON OF ALL

Says People Miss Real Cause For Thanksgiving If They Are Not Grateful To God For Blessings

Dr. John M. Walker, of this city district superintendent of the Methodist Episcopal church, who delivered the annual Thanksgiving services sermon at the First Presbyterian church this morning, after enumerating the material blessings for which the people of America should be thankful, said he would be re-creating to his duty as a minister of the gospel if he did not call attention to the profoundest reason for Thanksgiving—God "who can be with us and in us always."

"Some people can feel a measure of gladness for material things," he stated, "but they miss the real reason for Thanksgiving if they do not feel grateful to God for our many blessings. After all, it is the spirit in our heart that colors the surroundings of life. The spirit of Thanksgiving is like the fragrance of the rose that reflects the beauty of the spirit. People may look on us and admire our gifts, but they will recognize that something is missing if we do not have the spirit of God. While it is wonderful to rejoice over our material blessings, they are all shallow unless we reach our hands out and help some other life. Then we can realize that we have joined our Father in making possible the working out of His glorious mission."

Dr. Walker left immediately after delivering the sermon to make the same address at a Thanksgiving Day service at the Glenwood M. E. church. He was prepared to speak at Glenwood, E. W. McKibben, pastor of the wood and consented to preach at the union service here because the First United Presbyterian church, who was to preach this morning was quarantined last night and was unable to fill the pulpit. The Rev. Mr. McKibben's daughter is suffering with diphtheria.

Special Thanksgiving music was provided by a combined choir from all of the churches under the direction of O. P. Wamsley, director of St. Paul's church choir. A feature of the musical program was a duet by Miss Bernice Kelso of this city and Harold Stiers of New Salem.

Dr. Walker pointed out that the opportunities of life have been enhanced as time has gone on and that conditions have been improved as far as the mental and moral status of the world is concerned.

"For example," he continued, "the

WILL STATE POSITION ON STRAITS QUESTION

Belief Prevails In Washington That Government Will Soon Make Its Attitude Known

AT LAUZANNE CONFERENCE

Washington, Nov. 30.—The United States may soon state its position on question of the freedom of the Turkish straits at the Near Eastern conference at Lausanne, it was believed in Washington today.

This government through Ambassador Childs, acting under instructions from Secretary of State Hughes has already delivered to the Lausanne conference its position on one of the two most important questions before the parley—the "open door" in the Near East—now there remains a definition of America's policy on the other important problem, that of the straits.

This country's envoy to Rome who is acting as the principal American representative at Lausanne, has instructions on what to say on all questions affecting the rights and interests of the United States that come before the conference.

DEFENDANT WINS PATERNITY CASE

Jury in Circuit Court Returns Verdict for John Passmore, Second of Its Kind in Two Days

DEFENSE PROVES AN ALIBI

Jury Ordered to Report Friday For Clevenger Liquor Trial—Another Paternity Case Saturday

John Passmore, defendant in the circuit court Wednesday on a charge for paternity proceedings, was found not guilty by the jury late in the afternoon, and it was the second acquittal for defendants in such cases and in consecutive trials. On the day before, Charley Ryan was freed on a charge brought by Edith Ellerman.

In the case heard yesterday by the jury, several witnesses were used by each side, and the prosecuting witness, Miss Stella Walls, of near Manilla, became confused on the date of the alleged happening, and the defense established an alibi.

A third paternity case is pending for trial and is set for Saturday, it being the case of the State, ex rel English, against Gip Martin, Sr., colored people. The defendant, in this case, is now in jail awaiting trial, and has been there several weeks unable to provide bond.

The jury was told to report for service again Friday, as court recessed today on account of Thanksgiving Day.

The case before them Friday is a liquor case, in which Fred Clevenger is charged with unlawfully giving away intoxicating liquor, and a special venire was called for service. The jury also will be used in the paternity case on Saturday.

Next Monday, Mary Ellen Hughes will go on trial on a charge of embezzlement of funds, it being alleged in a grand jury indictment that she obtained over $200 from the funds belonging to the F. B. Johnson and Company drug store, in whose employ she was engaged.

Several state cases are also set for next week, and most of December will be devoted to cleaning up the docket of criminal issues, in order to give Gates Ketchum, the prosecutor-elect, a clean slate, when he assumes office on January 1.

Child Welfare Association Grows Out Of Modest Sewing School Started 15 Years Ago

Organization That Was First Financed by Charity Balls Gradually Enlarged to Care For All Defective Children of City With Formation of County Board of Children's Guardians, and Finally Grows Into Association With Members in Each Township.

The Rush County Child Welfare Association is the outgrowth of what was the first charity organization society in Rushville—the sewing school started about 15 years ago, in the Salvation Army church in Pearl street, by Mrs. Dora Betker and Mrs. A. L. Stewart, for the children of the poor. Here girls were taught to make their own garments, all material being furnished to them free and the garments given to them when completed.

This school soon outgrew its quarters. It was moved to the commissioners room in the court house where it continued in operation until domestic science was taken up in the public schools.

During the years the sewing school was in operation, the teachers found many children attending who were so far below normal, physically, as to be unable to properly benefit from the instructions given. The promoters of the school corrected many of these defective children and continued in this corrective work as far as they were able to finance it.

The promoters gave the first charity ball give in Rushville. It took place in what was then the

SMALL BUILDINGS ON THE DECREASE

Rush County One of Few in State Where One-Room Structures Have Practically Disappeared

CONSOLIDATED SCHOOL ROOM

First One Ever Constructed Was in Washington Township—Facts Stressed Education Week

Rush county is one of the few counties in the state, mentioned in a report of the Indiana education commission concerning one room school buildings, in which the number of such buildings is rapidly decreasing, showing that these few counties are progressing in educational work.

Next week has been set aside by President Harding as National Education Week, and throughout the country, stress will be laid on facts pertaining to the betterment of schools, teachers and teaching facilities. Programs carrying out the plans will be given in the schools in Rush county, according to an announcement by Birney D. Farthing, county school superintendent.

Rush county has the distinction of having the first consolidated school in the United States, and there is no reason why it should not continue in the advancement of education, it has been pointed out. The first school of this character was in Washington township and was built by William S. Hall, father of R. J. and Frank Hall.

The report of the commission which has just made a survey of the state, reveals that in Randolph, Montgomery, Marion, Rush and Delaware counties, there is scarcely a one-teacher school left. These counties have advanced in educational enterprises to such an extent that townships are consolidating their one and two room buildings, and are placing them in a convenient place in the township.

In Rush county, there are only three or four small buildings being used. The building at Circleville is a two-teacher school, and the Alexander school, also in Rushville township, is a one room building. Richland township does not have a consolidated school, because Jackson

FRANCE'S TIGER ON MISSION OF PEACE

Georges Clemenceau Makes Pilgrimage to Shrine of Lincoln at Springfield, Ills.

THANKFUL FOR RECEPTION

French Visitor in Rare Mood, One of Reverence, as He Left For Tomb of Emancipator By FRANK GETTY

(U. P. Staff Correspondent)

Chicago, Nov. 30.—France's Tiger, on his mission of peace today made pilgrimage to the shrine of this country's martyred man of peace, Abraham Lincoln.

Springfield, Ill., where he planned to lay a wreath upon Lincoln's tomb this afternoon, called Clemenceau from Chicago and a busy whirl of activity.

The Tiger observed Thanksgiving day by giving thanks that he had been so warmly received and that so much attention had been paid to his message. As for Thanksgiving dinner, that was to come on a railroad siding, "somewhere in Missouri" as the "Bethlehem" lies over tonight, not arriving in St. Louis until Friday morning.

Clemenceau was in a rare mood for him, one of reverence, as he prepared for a simple address at Springfield. He was to leave Chicago at 10 a. m., and get in at 3 o'clock this afternoon.

All he planned to do publicly today was to pay his homage to Lincoln; for the rest of the time he looked forward to resting after a busy Wednesday, in which he took in the stockyards, art galleries and an opera besides receiving numerous visitors.

He only bids "au revoir" to Chicago; he will be back here a week from Monday to address a farmers convention; wooing a vote of sympathy he is most anxious to secure.

Clemenceau is profoundly satisfied with the success of his mission in America.

Whatever the minor re-actions stirred up by his three formal pleas for sympathy for France, the Tiger admits he feels he has succeeded in his purpose.

"I give thanks that it is so," he said simply, departing for Springfield, Ills., where he will lay a wreath upon the tomb of this country's martyred man of peace—Abraham Lincoln.

TO MAKE PROBE OF HER OWN

Mrs. Frances Hall To Make Investigation Of Husband's Murder

(By United Press)

New Brunswick, N. J. Nov. 30.—Mrs. Frances Hall is starting an investigation of her own to ascertain who murdered her husband and Mrs. Elinor Mills.

Her attorneys said today she is anxious to run down the slayer and since the grand jury has shelved the case, she will take up the investigation herself.

Mrs. Hall is also contemplating a trip to Europe, it is reported.

Mrs. Jane Gibson, alleged eye witness of the crime, today denied the charge of George Siple, one of those who testified before the grand jury and who claimed she asked him to fill in the gap of the story with false testimony.

HISTORY OF LOAN DRIVES COMPILED

Copy Of "War Purse Of Indiana" Will Be Sent To The Rushville Library

JUST OFF THE PRESSES

Volume Issued By Indiana Historical Commission Gives History Of War Financing

A copy of the "War Purse of Indiana", by Walter Greenbough, director of publicity in the five Liberty Loan drives in Indiana, which has been published by the Indiana Historical Commission, will be sent to the Rushville public library where it will be accessible to anyone who cares to read a history of the campaign. A copy will also be presented to the Rush County Historical association.

The volume sets out a general history of the tremendous war finance efforts carried to successful conclusion in this county during the twenty-four months of the fighting period. It is a graphic summary of the participation of three million Indians in the five Liberty Loan and War Savings and Thrift Stamp drives. Copies are being sent to all public libraries in the state, universities and colleges and other historical associations throughout the country.

The record of every Indiana county in the two year period of the war is set out officially in the volume, and the story of the intense fights of county organizations everywhere in Indiana to meet the enormous totals of the Liberty bond and War Savings quotas from the bulk of the volume's pages. "The War Purse of Indiana" shows that a total of $500,000,000 was poured into the coffers of the nation by this state and its contribution to the war against autocracy. Woven into the official statistics of each county's part in the struggle at home is a story of the spirit of the people which added their enormous contributions to the war purse possible.

Names of the county chairmen and their unrelenting efforts to keep Indiana at the forefront of the other states in the World War are recorded in the book, and many sidelights against the background of the whole state's efforts are devoted to specific problems that arose in each of the ninety-two counties. The struggle to organize townships, small towns and large cities, the efforts to educate hundreds of thousands of new bond buyers, and the eventual success of the greatest organization—

FIGHT FOR THE FINAL PASSAGE ONLY BEGUN

Ship Subsidy Bill Receiving Majority In House Faces Much Harder Sledding In Senate

DELAY IS OPPONENTS GAME

Washington, Nov. 30.—With the ship subsidy bill safely passed, the house administration leaders realized today that the fight for final enactment of the measure has only begun.

The bill now goes to the senate where its opponents may even succeed in preventing the measure coming to a vote.

Democrats and irregular opponents like LaFollette and Borah will tilt the new congress comes in when the defeat of the bill has been practically assured.

Republican leaders have frankly warned President Harding the prospect of the bill is not bright.

However, they will do their best to force a vote. Senator Jones of Washington has called the merchant marine committee to meet Monday and will seek to have the subsidy bill reported to the senate a day later and then taken up immediately for debate.

The plans of its opponents will be to delay matters so that the bill will have to be laid aside to make way for the appropriation bills.

GAMBLER'S DREAM IS CASTLE IN AIR

Proves to be a Dream, However, Because San Marino Government Passes Law Against Gaming

ORNATE FURNISHINGS SOLD

For Years Speculative Eyes Have Looked Upon Autonomy as Remunerative Gaming Center

By ALICE ROHE

Republic of San Marino (By Mail to U. P.)—The danger of being robbed of its prestige as the world's greatest gaming center, which threatened Monte Carlo, is passed.

Today in San Marino they are taking inventories of gorgeous gold and plush furniture, mahogany bar, ornate chandeliers, luxurious carpets, beautiful marble mantels, fine carved ceilings, and all the fittings which surrounded the games of chance de luxe.

The gamblers' paradise, dreamed of, by a number of Roman, Milan and Pesaro speculators (and it is whispered, by a couple of American moneyed sports) has proved merely a castle in the air.

In no country in the world today is so strenuous a struggle going on to maintain primitive traditions, as in this unique little Republic of 12,000 souls, founded in the middle of the Fourth Century A. D. by Marino, as a haven for Christians persecuted under Diocletian.

Although today it seems a toy world, and its picturesque, primitive and medieval customs make one think of stage settings, the national spirit and the capable form of government have been most practical in resisting insidious influences for sixteen centuries.

For years speculative eyes have looked avariciously upon this little autonomy on its high mountain, and extending past its slopes for an area of 38 square miles, as a remunerative gaming center. Thirteen miles from Rimini and with excellent automobile service connecting it not only with this Adriatic city but with other railroad towns it offered an

Together

THAT is our story today, fellow farmers.

It means that we are getting the facts to the American people; we are selling agriculture to the Nation.

The things we are accomplishing benefit many others than ourselves. A prosperous agriculture is the foundation of all permanent prosperity and contentment. The Nation cannot prosper unless we do.

This economic fact does not seem to be generally understood, but more people know it today than did a year ago; and many more will know about it next year because the Farm Bureau, with over a million members, is telling that story.

The legislative conscience of the Nation has been awakened to our needs. The legislation benefits us, but it also helps the public at large. Our part in it was simply the presentation of facts. We got these facts from our people; they spoke with authority; they were heard.

Agricultural facts are being presented daily through the press. A better understanding of farming and its problems is being manifested all over the country.

Truly, we are winning together. We can go much faster when every farmer joins and helps.

Where do you stand?

ideal spot for a second Monte Carlo. Although completely surrounded by Italy and having certain custom alliances, the Republic is a perfect autonomy and free to follow its own laws.

The immense wealth which would pour into its exchequers from the establishment of a gambling palace would be inestimable.

But always the Sammarinesi have refused to listen to the luring call of gold. To them the traditions of their peaceful, simple life was worth more; money from gambling was a thing they could not touch.

Last year, however, speculators, believing it impossible that even San Marino could be unaffected by the changing ideas rampant throughout the world, took a long chance. Without asking government permission, or explaining the exact nature of their project, they leased for a term of years the largest palace in the republic, in the center of the city opposite the Hotel Titanus.

No money was spared in converting this old palace into a gorgeous gambling paradise, such as made the Sammarinesi gasp. But the place was not for them. The hope was that all the gaming world of chance would flock to this new and picturesque and secure gambling haven.

Tiled baths, modern kitchens, telephones, smokers, gaming rooms equal to those of Monte Carlo, a fine bar, a luxurious lounge and private rooms above were created like an Aladdin's palace. Then came the grand opening.

The government officials were invited but not one of them accepted. Private citizens were asked and they too refused to attend. The opening was a fiasco. And then little San Marino, up to this time secure in its right-doing and protected by its patron saint encircled by every moving dove, on the angle of the government palace, began to realize what had happened. The government immediately passed a law forbidding games of chance. What before had been a moral law, a traditional sentiment, became a legal code.

And so today if you care to come to San Marino you can get the fixings for an elegant gambling hell at bargain counter rates.

township has abandoned its buildings and are sending their pupils to Rushville.

About 2,600 of the 4,511 one-teacher schoolhouses in Indiana undoubtedly would be condemned if inspected by the state department of health, says the Indiana education survey commission report in a chapter on "Buildings, Grounds, and Equipment." About 3,600 of the one-teacher schoolhouses, in the state, or 80 percent, were erected prior to 1910, the report says, and represent the conventional type of rural school construction, found from the Atlantic to the Pacific.

The discussions of proper schoolhouse construction current in the last decade, the report says, "the sanitary schoolhouse law of 1911, and the supervision of the state board of accounts of more recent date have had little effect on the older one-teacher schoolhouses."

The grounds of one-teacher schools are almost always small, it is said, and rarely has anything been done to improve their appearance.

"Like most other states," the report says, "Indiana has the poorest teachers and the poorest school plants working together, with the inevitable result that country children obtain their education under the most unfavorable conditions."

The report points out that about 5,000 one-teacher schools have been abandoned since 1890, and that others are being abandoned at the rate of 250 a year. In Randolph, Montgomery, Marion, Rush and Delaware counties, it is said, there is scarcely a one-teacher school left. In other counties, however, poor roads and other physical conditions have limited consolidation, and there will always have to be a number of one-teacher schools. These are the counties in which the one-teacher buildings are the poorest, it is said. When the dilapidated buildings are replaced—and that should be as soon as possible—the new structures should be modern in every respect, even if small, the report advises.

Millionaire "Reddest of Reds", Sentenced to Joliet Penitentiary, is Given Freedom

FIFTEEN OTHERS ARE FREED

(By United Press)

Chicago, Nov. 30.—William Bross Lloyd, millionaire "reddest of the reds," enjoyed Thanksgiving with his family today, a free man.

The rich radical with 15 others serving sentences at Joliet penitentiary for violation of the state espionage act, were pardoned by Governor Len Small late last night.

Lloyd gained his freedom eight days after he had been enrolled with Joliet convicts. It took the state four years to convict him of the espionage charge.

Governor Small's pardon was based on the final dissenting view of Judge Carter of the state supreme court.

This opinion held that the Illinois espionage act under which the convictions had been obtained was unconstitutional.

"It was a good rest," Lloyd remarked as he stepped through the prison gate. "It would be good for any tired businessman."

The millionaire accepted the $10 "gate money" given all departing convicts, with an additional 87 cents for transportation.

He was met outside the gates by his wife and secretary, W. H. Murphy, who whisked him away in the family sedan.

World is more tolerant and we can sit down and discuss issues calmly, a thing that we could not do fifty years ago. I will admit that there is such a thing as being too tolerant, but a certain measure of intellectual freedom has come to us, notwithstanding that some people are torn by fear that a reign of terrorism will prevail.

"I am glad," the speaker said, "that in the realm of religious affairs, better conditions have come about. We have a better Bible today than we ever had before in the history of the world. In some respects this seems a small thing, but it is of vast importance that God is revealing himself more completely to us every year."

Dr. Walker asserted that a better fellowship prevails—better among men and in the homes.

"Of course," he continued, "many of us worry about the large number of divorces that are being granted, but we must remember that woman has a more exalted position in the world than ever before. The fury and disturbance that are now taking place may be a period of readjustment in which the world is preparing for the new conditions that prevail."

The speaker said that the conditions of children had improved, that there were more kind, generous and considerate parents than ever before.

STATE TAX BOARD CUT MANY LEVIES

Saved Many Communities From Paying Higher Taxes by Cutting Out Some of Their Proposals

MANY CASES ARE APPEALED

Indianapolis, Ind., Nov. 30.—Indiana taxpayers were saved almost $1,000,000 by the State Tax Board's action reducing levies fixed by local officials for next year. With less than half score appeal cases remaining for the board to act on, a review of its work shows that 43 of the 61 cases passed on have been marked by reduced levies. The reductions are scattered over the state, and range from a fraction of a cent to as much as 47 cents on each $100 taxables.

Governor Warren T. McCray, pleased with the board's record, declared its action on the levies, proposed by local officials, demonstrated how branches of the state government sought to economize, and he pointed out that the board only passes on tax levies when those levies are brought before the board by the appeal of local taxpayers.

"Taxes are fixed by local officials, and the money is raised and spent at home where each taxpayer has the chance to know the need of the expenditure," said the Governor. He added that he regarded the appeal provision of the tax law as a good one, and pointed out that it, along with that giving the board authority to pass on some bond issues, was designed to protect the taxpayer's pocketbook. Appeals may be made from any taxing unit on any of the numerous levies, fixed by local officials, but in the state board's session, now near the end, only 70 appeals were brought before it.

There is also a better spirit of fellowship in the communities, Dr. Walker asserted, pointing to the improvement of relations between business men, who are learning that the spirit of jealous rivalry need not exist.

"Not all merchants have learned this lesson," he continued, "but many are coming to see that it is their duty to serve the community."

The speaker also pointed out that there is a better spirit of fellowship among churches which are able to co-operate as never before. He also stated that missionaries are realizing this new spirit and are recognizing that there is something good in all religions.

He referred too, to the better spirit of fellowship that exists among nations and races, even though the conditions are not perfect, as is evidenced by the occasional flaring up of race prejudices and the difficulties among the nations of the world.

al effort a state ever has passed through, are recorded in the story fashion in the book.

Since more people in this county participated directly in the organization of the various Liberty Loan and War Savings Drives than in any other war drive, this "War Purse of Indiana" will be of deeper interest to a greater portion of our citizens than any other volume issued by the Historical Commission. A limited number of copies has been set aside for sale to the general public on order to the Indiana Historical Commission, Room 334, State House, Indianapolis, Ind. The price, which covers only the cost of publication, is $1.50 according to announcement today from the Historical Commission.

The volume sets out that Indiana's enormous total of contributions to the nation's war chest was paid for in general by the hog "crop" of the state during that war period. A discussion of the financial status of Indiana prior to her entrance into the fighting period, and the development of a buying power undreamed of prior to the war, is a phase of the book's subject matter. Economic re-adjustments through which the state's industry, agriculture and business passes as the great work of war financing went on, in another part of the volume. The rise of the spirit that sent more than a hundred thousand Hoosier boys to the conflict that made meatless, wheatless, heatless days a regular part of the life of every Hoosier, that pondered out additional million of dollars for war relief work and that re-adjusted the entire fabric of the state's normal life to the new war basis is told in the "War Purse of Indiana". The book relates that there were approximately ten thousand educated bond buyers in the state of Indiana at the beginning of the war, and that this total was increased through the vast program of education that followed the war's development to a total of several hundred thousand.

The Indiana Historical Commission is receiving orders for the book from Hoosier citizens interested in keeping in their private libraries a complete record of Indiana's great war finance efforts. Dr. John W. Oliver, Director of the Commission, said today, and it is expected the first edition of "The War Purse of Indiana" soon will be exhausted.

GOD IS LOVE: Beloved, let us love one another; for love is of God; and every one that loveth is born of God, and knoweth God.—1 John 4: 7.

Don't Get Hysterical

Mr. Clemenceau's evident purpose in coming to the United States was to read Americans a lecture and to chide them for "deserting France" since the close of the war. All this has a familiar ring. There has been a more or less constant procession of foreign propagandists to our shores since the senate rejected the Versailles treaty. They have not been as prominent in the affairs of their home countries as Clemenceau, nor have they possessed the romantic atmosphere that surrounds the former French premier. The fact that his war record, his great age, and his fighting spirit carry such an appeal to our people makes his propaganda far more dangerous than anything that has come before. Let us give him the recognition that is due a Frenchman of his eminence, but let us receive what he says in the same dispassionate spirit that we have listened to the outpourings of other alien lecturers.

Would Ignore Constitution

Exclaiming, "What's the Constitution among politicians"? Senator Caraway of Arkansas, has introduced a resolution declaring it to be the sense of the senate that all members of both houses defeated for re-election should abstain from voting during the remainder of their terms, and that chairmen of important committees not in sympathy with the results of the recent election should give way to other men. Of course the resolution will not be adopted, but it shows the radical trend of thought of some legislators and the unscrupulous means they would use to attain their ends if they could have their own way. The mere fact that hundreds of thousands of people would be deprived of representation in the ship subsidy debate and in other important pieces of legislation means nothing to such as Caraway.

Immense Tribute Paid

On the basis of tonnage entering into our export and import trade during the last hundred years, the Commerce Department has figured out that American-owned vessels earned about $9,000,000,000 in ocean freights, while foreign-owned ships took in over $28,000,000,000. The latter figure represents a dead loss to the United States, which we might have had if there had been sufficient American ships to carry our goods. It is on such facts as those that the advocates of the government aid bill are basing their arguments.

The parents are offered the opportunity to have their afflicted children treated by any physician, surgeon, oculist, dentist, etc., the parents may prefer, free of all cost to the parents, provided the parents are financially unable to pay. This year's record was taken by Dr. John L., assisted by the visiting nurse, Miss McWilliams, and Mrs. Albt Aldridge, secretary of the school board.

ARLINGTON WINS
OPENER OF SEASON

Athletic Club Basketball Team Takes
All-Star Aggregation Into Camp,
47 to 37

LEWISVILLE COMES DEC. 7

The Arlington Athletic Club basketball team won its opening game of the season Wednesday night on the home court, defeating an all-star team from New Palestine and Morristown, 47 to 37.

The first half ended 24 to 23 in favor of Arlington and in the last half the home team pulled out in front, but the game was always close and there was always a chance for either five to go out in front. The A. C.'s showed to great advantage in passing and team work and give promise of having a very successful season.

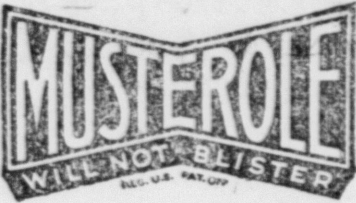

Garnder and Shook were the main point-getters for Arlington, the former making eight field goals and the latter seven. Others in the A. C. line-up were Tillison, Wicker, Northam, Abel, Nelson and Mitchell. The All-Stars were composed of Hutcheon, former Em-Roe player, Ferris, Murman, Wickliff, Gummi of New Palestine and O. Hawk of Morristown.

The Junior A. C.'s lost the curtain raiser to Gwynneville, 14 to 13. Next Thursday night, December 7, the Lewisville Independents will be the attraction at Arlington.

A. A. U. Sets The Speed Limit

By HENRY L. FARRELL
(United Press Sports Editor)

New York, Nov. 30.—In the argument over the acceptance of the records made by Charley Paddock, the California sprinter, the record committee of the A. A. U. voted to reject the records, "on the grounds that the times for the intermediate distances were physically impossible for a human to do."

If the record committee is mentally qualified to pass final judgment on the ability of any human in athletics it is the smartest body of men that ever lived.

It is folly for any men, who must admit that they are bounded by human limitations of mentality, to sit in august session and attempt to set a limit for the accomplishment of any athlete.

It might be said of course that no athlete would ever be able to put the sixteen pound shot two miles or that no high jumper ever will be able to clear the bar at one hundred feet.

However, it would be just as ridiculous to say that those things could be done as to say that no sprinter would ever be able to run 100 yards in less than nine and three-fifths seconds.

If this action of the A. A. U. in establishing the limits of human ability is to become a precedent, the A. A. U. may just as well declare closed the broad jump record, the high jump record, the quarter and half mile records and notify young athletes to try something else, because no human being can better those records.

The broad jump record stood for twenty-one years until Ned Gordin, the great Harvard athlete, came along and beat it. Along the A. A. U. line of reasoning, it will be at least twenty years again before that record can be equalled.

The records for two miles up to ten miles have been standing for 18 years; the record for 300 yards has been on the books 26 years and it would seem to indicate that the limit had been reached in these events. They might as well be closed to avoid arguments in the future.

In some of its deliberations, the A. A. U. assumes the role of omnipotent wisdom and in others it makes a bid just for the opposite. Joie Ray and the two Loomis boys were set down for what was declared to be exorbitant expense demands.

Instead of inflicting punishment on the athletes, the A. A. U. should get after the clubs who pay exorbitant expenses and then, after the manner of a "welcher," file complaint, sit in judgment on a case in which they are partly the plaintiff and then take the money back.

Ray, however, didn't get more than a slap on the wrist. He was ordered to return $100 and suspended for the rest of the year.

The suspension was a joke because Ray could not run before the first of January if he wanted to. The season does not open until then.

Frank Loomis was ordered to pay back some expense money or be suspended as an amateur. He hasn't been an amateur for almost two years, being engaged openly as a coach in the middlewest.

STEWART IS HIGH POINT MAN

Former R. H. S. Player Stars With Em-Roes of Indianapolis

The Em-Roes of Indianapolis, with Stewart, a former high school player of this city in their line up, won their opening game Tuesday night when they defeated the Speedway team 61 to 8.

Stewart was the high point scorer of the game with thirteen field goals. Hite, Bassett and Montgomery shot five field baskets each and the whole winning team played an exceptionally fast game. The Em-Roes will open their schedule at Shelbyville Friday.

The game with Franklin, the date for which had been announced as Dec. 12, will not be played because of misunderstanding. Manager Callahan of the Emroes announced. He said the date had been offered to two other colleges and expected it to be accepted by one of them soon.

MILROY FIVE IS SWAMPED

Columbus Takes Rush County Team
To Tune of 56 To 22

Columbus high school's basketball team continued with their winning streak, when they took the Milroy high school team down the line Wednesday night at Columbus, by the count of 56 to 22. The short, snappy passing and floor work of the Columbus team proved to be too much for the Rush county team although they put up a hard fight and started the game fast. After the first few minutes of play, it could be seen that the Milroy team did not have much chance.

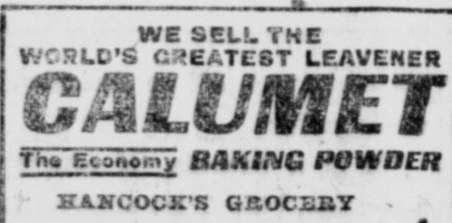

Columbus has been hitting a fast stride this season and is pointed as a state title contender. On Saturday night they play the Frankfort team, which will be a real test for their ability.

Yes, Times Have Changed

A FEW centuries ago the word "idiot" meant a member of Roman citizenry. Citizens in general would resent the implication that the word conveys, today. There are still idiots, but the application of the word is entirely different from what it was of old.

There was also a time when some advertisements had to be taken with a grain of salt. A few misguided advertisers thought they could sell their goods better by mis-representing them. Those advertisers have long since gone out of business or mended their ways. Hard experience taught that untruthful advertising didn't pay.

Other advertisers proved that the only way to advertise successfully, make regular customers, and build up good will was to tell the absolute truth about their goods.

Today you can depend on the merchant or manufacturer who advertises. The concern that tells you frankly what it is doing is a good concern with which to do business. The store that advertises is a progressive store that has something worth while to say to you. And companies that advertise their products or their services believe in them. You can safely share their confidence.

To Give to Other Folk's Babies

IF YOU take the opportunity to choose from these displays, you will have some pretty little remembrance ready to send with your greetings. There are bonnets and booties, pillow tops and ribbon dainties, bath toys and rattles—each and every one will gladden the new mother and maybe cause the new baby to smile its very first smile.

Rattles, Wee Combs, Ivory Pieces

ALL babies like a noise and they like best to make it themselves with a rattle, one shaped like a jolly policeman painted red, maybe. They also like celluloid fishes and ducks and turtles to swim around with them when they're having their bath. Combs, talcum boxes, tiny nail files come in ivory.

COULD NOT TURN IN BED

Operation Avoided by Taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Dayton, Ohio.—"I had such pains that I had to be turned in bed every time I wished to move. They said an operation was necessary. My mother would keep saying: 'Why don't you take Pinkham's, Henrietta?' and I'd say, 'Oh, mamma, it won't help me, I've tried too much.' One day she said, 'Let me get you one bottle of each kind. You won't be out very much if it don't help you.' I don't know if you will believe me or not, but I only took two bottles of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and one of Lydia E. Pinkham's Blood Medicine when I began to get relief and I am regular ever since without a pain or a headache.

When I lie down I can get up without help and without pain. I can't begin to tell you how I feel and look. I have begun to gain in weight and look more like I ought to. I think every day of ways I have been helped. Any one who does not believe me can write to me and I will tell them what shape I was in. I am ready to do anything I can to help your medicine."

—Mrs. HENRIETTA MILLER, 137 Sprague St., Dayton, Ohio.

If you have any doubt write to Mrs. Miller and get her story direct.

Let Us Fix
Up That Suit

A neat appearing suit doesn't necessarily mean that it is new.

Many a man who has come to us for a clean and press has been asked this very question, however.

More than that—one of our regular jobs is mending tears and places where the fabric has pulled apart, in such a manner that they cannot be seen. One man after another has received months of wear out of a suit of clothes he thought ready for the "old clothes man."

No matter how the condition, bring in that suit. Let us fix it, or press it, or both. We'll frankly tell you if it's beyond hope.

Here's the Answer

The changeable weather of Autumn gives rise to a knotty problem of dressing for comfort and health. Most folks lean toward the warmer periods—that's why colds are so prevalent when the thermometer drops and the raw winds blow.

LAXACOLD

taken after exposure or at the first sign of a cold, is helpful toward warding off the attack; it is also efficient as a router of the cold that has "taken root."

AMUSEMENTS

Last Showing "Manslaughter"

There are plenty of actors who can't play a trombone. There are even more trombone players who can't act. But Cecile B. DeMille succeeded in finding a man who could do both for a small piece of comedy business in his latest Paramount picture "Manslaughter," which will be the attraction at the Princess Theatre again today.

The actor musician is Guy Oliver, veteran character actor. He is a member of the Famous Player-Lasky stock company and one of the mainstays of the studio orchestra where he plays his favorite instrument the trombone.

Mr. Oliver shares screen honors with Lestrice Joy, with Thomas Meighan and Lois Wilson, heads the all-star cast of "Manslaughter". Between them they are responsible for a bit of genuine laugh-making acting that is part of the comedy relief in an otherwise serious interpretation of the story which Jeanie Macpherson adapted from Alice Duer Miller's novel of the same name.

"There is one little dream of a beautiful drum—
'Rub-a-dub!' it goeth;
There is one little dream of a big sugar plum,
And lo! thick and fast the other dreams come
Of popguns that bang and tin tops that hum,
And a trumpet that bloweth
And dollies peep out of those wee little dreams
With laughter and singing;

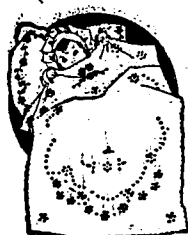

And boats go floating on silvery streams,
And the stars peek-a-boo with their own misty gleams,
And up, up, and up, where the Mother Moon beams,
The fairies go winging."
